GW Georg v. Westphalen

The apocalypse will be televised.
Repeatedly. On a loop. With ads.

THE CLOCK IS TICKING (BUT THE HANDS ARE PAINTED ON)

How to defer the future so you never have to live in the present.

THE DOOMSDAY CLOCK

POWER: Set a public timer near midnight and move the hands by announcement, never by event.

LORE: A symbol of danger adjusted by judgment reads as objective measurement to the public.

THE PERPETUAL ALMOST

POWER: Keep the catastrophe permanently arriving and never arrived.

LORE: The fear tracks the coverage, not the actual events.

KayfaBOGGLE!

THE FROZEN WATCHER

POWER: Convert the citizen into an audience by giving them a clock they cannot stop.

LORE: Heavy exposure to dramatized danger correlates with withdrawal and mistrust.

THE RENEWED ALARM

POWER: When one deadline passes, issue the next at full volume and never acknowledge the expiration.

LORE: The fear is the renewable product, not the forecast.

BREAK THE GLASS, KEEP THE LEVER

Suspend the rules to save the day, then throw away the calendar.

The Manufactured Crisis

POWER: Declare an emergency large enough to suspend normal rules and sell the suspension as care.

LORE: Moments of crisis push through measures the public is too disoriented to resist.

The State of Exception

POWER: Install the exception as temporary and promise it ends when the danger does.

LORE: The exception tends to become the rule, outlasting the crisis that birthed it.

The Danger That Won't Die

POWER: Keep the threat alive so the powers never have to be handed back.

LORE: Institutions empowered by an emergency acquire a structural incentive for it to continue.

The New Normal

POWER: Let yesterday's exception become today's standing furniture.

LORE: Normalization is the slow acceptance of the unthinkable through tiny, waved-through steps.

DROWNING IN THE SHALLOWS

Speed and volume over accuracy and consistency.

Stay fluffy!

The Firehose

The Attention Poverty

POWER: Flood the field so attention becomes the scarce resource, then ration it.

LORE: A wealth of information creates a poverty of attention.

The Worn Filter

POWER: Exhaust the sorting mind until the tired sorter accepts the default.

LORE: Repeated decisions degrade the quality of later ones via decision fatigue.

The Grateful Drift

POWER: Overload the reader until they gratefully accept whatever floats to the top.

LORE: Structural filters shape what reaches the public without needing a central censor.

THE CREDENTIAL SHIELD

Confident, wrong, and booked for the 8 o'clock slot.

The Permanent Pundit

POWER: Install a voice whose job is to be worried on schedule with camera-ready confidence.
LORE: Confident, media-friendly forecasters are often the least accurate but beat chance.

The Credential Shield

POWER: Borrow authority so the claim travels without its evidence attached.

LORE: Assertions move through a crowd on the strength of a title, leaving the proof at home.

The No-Track-Record

POWER: Reward confident prediction and never compare it to what actually happened.

LORE: Pundit ecosystems keep no score, so being wrong carries zero cost.

The Booking

POWER: Reward the loudly wrong with another segment; volume is the only metric.

LORE: Media incentives select for attention-generating voices regardless of their accuracy record.

KayfaBINGO!

THE INFINITE TROUGH

Your stillness is the yield.

The Infinite Feed

POWER: Build a trough with no bottom and call it staying informed.

LORE: Variable, unpredictable rewards produce the most persistent, slot-machine-like behavior.

The Negativity Tax

POWER: Charge a little adrenaline per scroll and collect it all day.

LORE: The mind weighs bad more heavily than good; feeds optimized for engagement exploit this bias.

BLÖDSINN!

The Stuck Herd

POWER: Let watching together feel like acting together.

LORE: Low-cost online gestures substitute for meaningful action, mistaking shared attention for shared movement.

The Engagement Yield

POWER: Harvest paralysis; it monetizes better than action ever would.

LORE: When attention is the product, the system optimizes for the outrage that holds the eye best.

THE COMFORT OF DOOM

Despair is the most relaxing ideology on the menu.

KayfaBONGO!

The Closed Window

POWER: Insist the moment to act already passed, because grief is quieter than effort.

LORE: Doomism demobilizes people as effectively as outright denial.

The Sunk Future

POWER: Frame any effort as waste, since the outcome is fixed.

LORE: When people believe an outcome is determined, they withdraw, making the prophecy self-fulfilling.

The Comfort of Doom

POWER: Offer certain defeat as relief; it asks nothing of you.

LORE: Certainty of disaster reduces the discomfort of ambiguity, making fatalism feel restful.

The Alibi

POWER: Hand the citizen a permission slip to do nothing, signed by themselves.

LORE: In learned helplessness, the belief in no-exit outlasts the actual trap.

THE USEFUL ENEMY

Faces sell better than systems.

The Useful Enemy

POWER: Supply a face for the formless fear; faces sell better than systems.

LORE: Moral panics cast groups as threats, amplified far larger than the actual risk.

The Othering Frame

POWER: Sort people into the danger and the decent, and erase the overlap.

LORE: Stereotypes are cheap pictures handed to a crowd when checking reality is too slow.

The Unifying Hate

POWER: Bind the crowd with a shared enemy; it works faster than a shared plan.

LORE: Arbitrary groups turn hostile fast, united by hate until given a shared task.

The Rotating Villain

POWER: When one enemy tires, issue the next; the slot matters, the face does not.

LORE: Propaganda systems maintain a job opening for the enemy that is endlessly refilled.

THE OBEDIENT PULSE

Whoever sets your pulse sets your politics.

The Alarm Bell

POWER: Keep the threat response warm; a scared mind is a steerable mind.

LORE: Alarm triggers via a fast subcortical pathway before the thinking brain can assess the threat.

The Cortisol Economy

POWER: Sell the cortisol spike, then sell the relief, to the exact same customer.

LORE: Chronic activation of the stress response degrades health and judgment over time.

What the FLUFF?!

The Narrowed View

POWER: Use fear to shrink attention to the next ten seconds; long plans die there.

LORE: Under high arousal, attention narrows to the threat, losing peripheral info and long horizons.

The Obedient Pulse

POWER: Frighten people, then offer whoever promises to make it stop.

LORE: When mortality is salient, people lean harder toward strong authority and in-group certainty.

THE CHERRY ORCHARD

Every brick is real, but the house is still a lie.

The Anecdote Engine

POWER: Promote the vivid single case to the status of a pattern.

LORE: A memorable, frightening story outweighs boring statistics even when the stat is the truth.

The Missing Denominator

POWER: Show the scary number; hide what it is out of.

LORE: People ignore base rates and react to raw counts, making rare events feel common.

The Cherry Orchard

POWER: Keep the frames that confirm the dread; quietly drop the rest.

LORE: Selective reporting builds a false overall picture where every individual fact checks out.

The Felt Statistic

POWER: Repeat a story until it feels true, so nobody asks for the actual rate.

LORE: Leading with what bleeds trains an audience to drastically overestimate danger.

THE TIRED CITIZEN

They didn't make you lazy. They made you tired.

The Standing Alarm

POWER: Hold the body at low-grade threat for months; never let it stand down.

LORE: Allostatic load is the cumulative physical wear from chronic stress systems left running.

The Shortened Breath

POWER: Keep the breathing high and tight; calm thinking requires the lower lungs.

LORE: Threat shifts breathing to rapid/shallow, blocking the calm parasympathetic state.

The Worn Adrenal

POWER: Run the engine without a cooldown until it loses the ability to idle.

LORE: Sustained stress without recovery is the core physiological driver of burnout.

The Tired Citizen

POWER: Let exhaustion read as apathy; blame the victim for the depletion you farmed.

LORE: Withdrawal is the predictable symptom of a nervous system held in alarm too long.

Stay fluffy!

THE MOCKED ALTERNATIVE

A political choice cleverly disguised as physics.

The Sealed Room

POWER: Present the system as total, with absolutely no outside to step into.

LORE: Hypernormalisation is treating fakeness as normal because alternatives seem unimaginable.

There Is No Alternative

POWER: Repeat that no alternative exists until imagining one feels inherently naive.

LORE: TINA converts a political choice into a fake law of nature (capitalist realism).

The Trained Surrender

POWER: Run enough failed attempts that the animal stops trying long before the door opens.

LORE: Expectation, not the cage, holds subjects long after escape becomes possible.

The Mocked Alternative

POWER: Make every exit look childish, so nobody is caught wanting one.

LORE: Ridicule polices the boundary of the thinkable without requiring actual counterarguments.

KayfaBOGGLE!

THE QUIET INVOICE

You cannot have agency taken; you can only hand it over.

The Surrendered Wheel

POWER: Trade the burden of choosing for the comfort of being driven.
LORE: An external locus of control predicts a total failure to attempt influencing one's life.

The Atrophied Will

POWER: A faculty that never decides forgets how to decide.
LORE: Decision-making follows a use-it-or-lose-it principle; handed off, the habit weakens.

The Outsourced Verdict

POWER: Let the feed decide what is true so you never carry the doubt yourself.

LORE: When judgment is fully outsourced, the capacity to independently weigh evidence atrophies.

The Quiet Invoice

POWER: Present the total gently, years after the choice was quietly made for you.

LORE: The cost of surrendered agency is billed in years spent watching instead of acting.

KayfaBINGO!

THE LOOP TEST

Information has an exit. A hold does not.

The Endless Breaking

BREAKING

POWER: Mark everything as breaking; let absolutely nothing be allowed to finish.

LORE: The continuous news cycle creates a permanent present where resolution kills engagement.

The No-Off-Ramp

POWER: Never ask anything of the reader; an absence of an off-ramp is the tell.

LORE: Genuine information equips action; retention-feeds offer no point to act and leave.

The Unfalsifiable Dread

POWER: Build a fear that no amount of evidence can ever calm.

LORE: A dread that survives every reassuring fact was never actually about the facts.

The Loop Test

POWER: Watch whether the story ever resolves; if it only renews, you found the mechanism.

LORE: Tracking if a narrative closes is the reliable way to tell reporting from retention.

KayfaBIZARRO!

CUI BONO? (WHO PROFITS?)

The analyst's first question, answered before motive or morality.

The Beneficiary Map

POWER: Trace who gets paid while you stay still—in attention, power, or deferred reform.

LORE: Following the payout explains structural patterns that individual intentions cannot.

The Returned Wheel

POWER: Notice that the smallest real action breaks the spell faster than the largest worry.

LORE: Agency is recovered through physical doing, not through being better informed.

The Paralysis Dividend

POWER: Name the parties for whom your inaction is the desired outcome, not a side effect.

LORE: Diffuse incentives can farm mass paralysis without anyone conspiring to do so.

THE CORE QUESTION

POWER: Ask this of every alarm before you forward it: who benefits when you stop acting?

LORE: The collapse may be real, but separating genuine danger from manufactured stillness is the cure.

Stay fluffy!
