UNCLE FRIZZLEBOB'S KOMIK KARDS FOR SECRET SPY SUPLEXES & TRILATERAL AGENT TRANSGRESSIONS

CLASSIFIED

What the FLUFF?!

KayfaBIZARRO!

TOP SECRET

The Apparatchik

POWER: Discard a player's loyalty token to save yourself.

LORE: The institution doesn't love you back. It just manages you as a resource.

The Grey Desk

POWER: Stall the game for 3 turns. Nobody gets to play.

LORE: Treason doesn't wear a mask; it wears a cheap suit and denies your pension.

Institutional Betrayal

POWER: Force the player with the most points to lose half.

LORE: The apparatus always sacrifices its agents. The only question is when.

The Paper Trail

POWER: Reveal a hidden objective card.

LORE: Espionage is 90% filing reports about lies you told to other liars.

The Exhausted Veteran

POWER: Ignore one attack, but you cannot draw cards next turn due to sheer apathy.

LORE: Too many missions, too many names. He wants out, but the door is walled over.

The Ideological Believer

POWER: Gain +2 strength, but auto-lose if a 'Truth' card is played.

LORE: Naive idealism is the most dangerous form of espionage.

The Defector

POWER: Swap hands with an opponent, inheriting all their penalties.

LORE: He changed sides. Now nobody believes his story, least of all himself.

The Burned Asset

POWER: Silence a player for one round.

LORE: The realization of sacrifice isn't a scream. It's absolute, hollow silence.

THE SLEEPER AGENT

POWER: Copy another card's ability permanently, but discard your original name.
LORE: Live the role long enough, and the original identity dissolves entirely.

THE ORIGINAL FACE

POWER: Nullify an opponent's disguise.
LORE: What remains of a person after they've been used as a tool for a decade?

THE MASK THAT STUCK

POWER: Force an opponent to play their next 3 turns with cards facing outward.
LORE: At some point, the fake loyalty becomes the only real thing left.

THE SPLIT MIND

POWER: Play two conflicting action cards at once; take 2 damage to your own psyche.
LORE: Identity erosion isn't a side effect; it is the core mechanic of the trade.

The Gadget Fetish

POWER: Destroy an enemy card, but lose 2 health from the inevitable shrapnel.
LORE: Technology cannot replace psychology. Gadgets just make the body bags heavier.

The Invulnerable Myth

POWER: Cancel a damage effect, but discard your entire hand in embarrassment.
LORE: A spy who makes no mistakes isn't a spy. It's boring corporate slop.

The Hollow Tuxedo

POWER: Look flashy, do exactly zero damage.
LORE: Glamour is a fantasy projection to hide the institutional trauma.

The Patriotic Lie

POWER: Steal an opponent's turn by shouting "For the Country!"
LORE: "Patriotism" isn't a character motivation; it's the lie they feed you at

The False Flag

POWER: Redirect an attack to a random third party.

LORE: Every information could be false. Every figure.

LORE: Paranoia isn't a stylistic device. It is the baseline epistemic reality. CHAOS! MISDIRECTION!

KayfaBIZARRO!

The Double Mirror

POWER: Rebound any Lore effect back at the caster.

WHO IS WHO?!

KayfaBIZARRO!

The Paranoia Loop

POWER: Everyone must suddenly shuffle their active hands into the draw deck.

LORE: The audience no longer knows who to trust. The spy forgot years ago.

ENDLESS SPIRAL! TRAP!

KayfaBIZARRO!

Poisoned Intel

POWER: Peek at a card. If it's a Trap, you instantly lose.

LORE: Trust is just a currency waiting to be shorted.

DO NOT TOUCH! DANGER!

GW

Georg v. Westphalen

The Indirect Threat

POWER: Force an opponent to discard a card of their choice via intense politeness.

LORE: Spies never speak directly. The real information hides in the pauses and polite smiles.

The Double Meaning

POWER: Play a card face down; it triggers three turns from now.

LORE: A conversation where both know the other is lying, but courtesy demands silence. Politeness as a threat.

Simultaneous Directives

POWER: Give two opponents completely contradictory rules for the next turn.

LORE: Two bosses, two different directives for the same op. Navigate the verbal minefield.

The Deniable Pause

POWER: Skip the current phase entirely.

LORE: True tradecraft is found in false self-corrections and strategic topic changes.

The "Small" Lie

POWER: Steal exactly 1 resource from the poorest player.

LORE: It starts with a minor compromise. Just a look away. Just one uncomfortable task.

HUMBUG!

The Necessary Evil

POWER: Destroy a friendly card to gain an immediate advantage.

The Blind Eye

POWER: Ignore a blatant rule violation this turn.

LORE: You don't leap into moral bankruptcy. You slide into it, one ignored atrocity at a time.

Big Corruption

POWER: Take control of the game board.

LORE: Only when you look back do you see the full, horrifying trajectory of your compromises.

HUMBUG!

The Dead Drop

POWER: Secretly leave a card under the table for someone else to find.

LORE: Character A knows X and acts like they don't. That's the engine of the genre.

HIDDEN!

KayfaBINGO!

HIDDEN!

ISOLATION!

KayfaBINGO!

The Blind Spot

POWER: Hide your hand from all players for the rest of the game.

LORE: Character B knows Y and refuses to share it. Trust is just bad math.

LOOK UP!

KayfaBINGO!

OBLIVIOUS!

KayfaBINGO!

Dramatic Irony

POWER: Reveal a secret rule only you and one other player know.

LORE: The audience knows more than the spy. It's a tragedy disguised as a thriller.

BOOM!

BOOM!

MINE!

KayfaBINGO!

HIDDEN!

SHHH!

SHHH!

The Secret Holder

POWER: Gain points for every card your opponents haven't played yet.

LORE: Secrets aren't facts; they are leverage.

MINE!

KayfaBINGO!

LOOK UP!

KayfaBINGO!

WINK!

KALAM

The Server Room

POWER: Look at the top 3 cards of the deck and rearrange them.

LORE: Modern espionage tells the exact same story, just in server rooms instead of embassy parks.

What the FLUFF?!

The Whistleblower

POWER: Reveal everyone's hidden cards; you lose your next turn and go into exile.

LORE: Knows the truth, speaks it, and pays the ultimate price. The public vs. The Apparatus.

What the FLUFF?!

What the FLUFF?!

The Data Point

POWER: Count the cards in an opponent's discard pile to perfectly guess their next move.

LORE: You aren't a person anymore. You are a profile, perfectly predicted.

What the FLUFF?!

The Algorithm Eye

POWER: Force a player to repeat their exact last action.

LORE: Cold, precise, democratic tracking. Anyone can be a spy. Everyone is a target.

What the FLUFF?!

The Shaking Hand

POWER (Courier Prime):
Drop a card randomly from your hand onto the table.

LORE (Courier Prime):
Espionage exacts a physical toll. You can't outrun the exhaustion of the body.

Stay fluffy!

The Isolated Cell

POWER (Courier Prime):
You cannot be targeted,
but you also cannot attack or interact.

LORE (Courier Prime):
The ultimate reward for a lifetime of service is dying completely alone.

Stay fluffy!

The Forgotten Name

POWER (Courier Prime):
Blank out the text of one opponent's card, making it useless.

LORE (Courier Prime):
Memory failure isn't a glitch; it's the brain trying to protect itself from the lies.

Stay fluffy!

The Emotional Freeze

POWER (Courier Prime):
Ignore all Lore effects for one round.

LORE (Courier Prime):
The heart doesn't break;
it just stops feeling anything at all to survive the frost.

Stay fluffy!

STATE VS. INDIVIDUAL

IDEOLOGY VS. MORALITY

KayfaBIZARRO!

KayfaBIZARRO!

POWER: Choose between losing your entire hand or losing half your health.

LORE: Loyalty to the machine vs. the desperate urge to survive. The machine usually wins.

KayfaBIZARRO!

KayfaBIZARRO!

KayfaBIZARRO!

POWER: Discard a 'Good' alignment card to forcefully play an 'Evil' action.

LORE: What are you really fighting for, and what happens when you realize the cause is rotten?

KayfaBIZARRO!

KayfaBIZARRO!

LOYALTY VS. SURVIVAL

THE ULTIMATE CHOICE

KayfaBIZARRO!

POWER: Sacrifice a teammate's card to block a lethal attack aimed at you.

LORE: In an emergency, loyalty is the first thing jettisoned. Who sacrifices whom first?

KayfaBIZARRO!

KayfaBIZARRO!

POWER: End the game immediately in a deeply unsatisfying draw.

LORE: To whom do you owe your loyalty when every single side is covered in filth?

KayfaBIZARRO!

Georg v. Westphalen

THE SYSTEMIC FATALIST

POWER (Courier Prime):
Predict the exact turn you will lose. If correct, you steal the win.

LORE (Courier Prime):
You can't beat the system.
You can only decide how it crushes you.

THE RAIN-SOAKED ALLEY

POWER (Courier Prime):
Obscure the board; no
one can read card texts for one full turn.

LORE (Courier Prime):
The aesthetic of doom.
Action meets Detective
meets existential despair.

THE DIRTY HANDS

POWER (Courier Prime):
Take severe damage to deal double damage to an opponent.

LORE (Courier Prime):
Ethics under extreme conditions. There is no clean way out of the shadows.

THE INESCAPABLE TRAP

POWER (Courier Prime):
Lock one enemy card permanently. It cannot be moved or played.

LORE (Courier Prime):
Betrayal isn't a twist;
it's the perfectly logical consequence of the game.

THE VOLUNTARY SPY

POWER: Broadcast your hand face-up to the table for +1 resource per turn.

LORE: Espionage is just an extreme mirror of our platform-driven, self-surveilled reality.

KayfaBONGO!

THE PLATFORM ARCHITECT

POWER: Change the core rules of the game for one round.

LORE: Cognitive warfare and over-shared privacy. We built our own panopticon.

KayfaBONGO!

THE MONETIZED SECRET

POWER: Sell an opponent's secret objective to the highest bidder.

LORE: Information is no longer just power. It is the only currency that matters.

KayfaBIZARRO!

THE PROFILE

POWER: Auto-counter an opponent based solely on their previous plays.

LORE: There is no 'private' self left. Just a string of exploitable data points.

KayfaBIZARRO! GW Georg v. Westphalen

EPISTEMIC SABOTAGE

POWER (Courier Prime):
Rip a dummy card in half (literally) to destroy two targets simultaneously.

LORE (Courier Prime):
Deconstruct trust completely. Break the fourth wall and burn the pieces.

CUT-AND-PASTE LOGIC

POWER (Courier Prime):
Physically place this card over another to combine their texts.

LORE (Courier Prime):
When the system is rigged, the only valid strategy is absolute Dadaist anarchy.

THE RULEBREAKER

POWER (Courier Prime):
Ignore all rules. Draw a picture on the table. If people laugh, you survive.

LORE (Courier Prime):
The truth is a joke, so you might as well be the one holding the punchline.

THE ABSURD TRUTH

POWER (Courier Prime):
Win instantly if you can convince the table of a blatant, hilarious lie.

LORE (Courier Prime):
We're all just animals playing a rigged game of epistemic collapse.

Stay fluffy!
